I'm really not trying to be a douchebag here....but I hope you're leaving your beautiful children wherever you're staying at and not bringing them to the protest. I think it may get Erhmm rowdy. Otherwise, see you there!!

Im all for people making their own decisions about this. Most of the blm and antifa would be a fair fight with kids this age. Just know thats what it may come to.

The whole day will be peaceful until the vote, at that point you'll see pressure and people can do as they want. If you are only asking for men aged 22-35 with guns to show up you'll have like 70k people show up.

This is no joke, people do not understand the scale of a military force we the people truly are.. We have more AR15 rifles in the hands of citizens, than the entire combined catalog of all small arms in the possession of the US military... That's just AR15's, that doesn't include the handguns, lever actions, bolt actions, AKM, and everything else civilian's have..A force of 75K armed with AR or similar with each having 100 rounds could EASILY make any city including DC thier bitch in short order...

Yeah. Honestly it's a big liability.

More than likely if some shit hits the fan and they're being assaulted, some patriots are going to have to separate and divert attention to helping them out and possibly putting themselves at risk instead of staying on track of whatever they should be doing.

ANTIFA loves easy targets, a guy with kids is just that.

Kind of irresponsible. Especially posting their faces like that.

During the last two Stop the Steal marches, things were fine during the day. As long as you are in crowds during the day it's probably going to be fine. Things started to get weird around 3:30 PM last time. At that point, anyone who isn't up to a fight should probably start heading for shelter to be inside by sunset.

Yes, be safe and have a plan. Yes, there is risk inherent to taking a position politically. But that is not a reason to try and minimize this protest.

So much dumb in this post. Who the fuck posts pictures of their kids on this website where people are actively looking to hurt the people who post here. This is simply the dumbest thing I have ever seen here. Don't make your kids pay for you trying to show how brave and proud you are.

There is a most likely chance this protest will go violent while the sun is still up. There is a tiny small chance this will just be a normal protest where everyone is mostly safe during the day with things getting violent at night. This is not a march. This is something else. Completely unpredictable.

Though if I was being completely Machiavellian about it, I would point out that beautiful kids wearing MAGA gear getting physically assaulted on camera is good for our side. Though most people probably think bringing your kids to dangerous protests is on the parents so maybe not.

Either way, posting a photo of your beautiful kids is just plain stupid.

But at the same time you have people like Mini AOC who are minors with a public presence... so idk.

Personally I never would. The pic is lovely, though. Those kids do look ready to kick some commie ass.

You're bringing your kids to what could very much end up being open conflict? Seems a little irresponsible, but who am I to judge.

Different parenting philosophies. Spartans and Romans started training their kids for warfare at about age 6-8, and "old enough" to them was younger than it is now. Every parent has to weigh carefully whether exposure to experiences or shelter from those experiences is the best thing. Too much exposure, and you rob your kid of their childhood and put them in unnecessary risk. Too much shelter, and you rob your child of the ability to later practice self-sufficiency and sound judgement.

Some people truly feel that you gotta let your kid get out there and LIVE, and if he dies, then he was too weak or else God decided it was his time. Very Roman/Spartan.

I'm kind of in the middle on it all, but I can see both sides pretty clearly and I don't think either decision is a particularly bad one.

I have one son under 18 that if it was just me and him, I would take him. But I have another one under 18 who I would not consider taking because I don't think they have as good a sense of practicality or situational awareness.
